

GIVING IT UP.

The "Wail and Distress" Concedes the Fact

THAT CLEVELAND IS ELECTED.

The Cattle Complaint—Casualties—Delaware Heard From at Last—Shows a Cleveland Plurality.

Giving It Up.

NEW YORK, November 12.—The Mail and Express this afternoon says: The official canvass of the vote of this State is in progress to-day. Few changes are made. It is now generally conceded that the vote of the counties above Harrison Bridge cannot be changed to affect Cleveland's plurality. An accidental error may entirely wipe out the plurality and on this alone are based the hope of the Republicans. At midnight forty of the sixty counties were heard from officially. They gave a net gain for Cleveland, leaving his plurality at 1,225, according to the claims of the Democrats. This practically ends any probability of any serious increase to Blaine's majorities in the rural counties. Although it is fair to bear in mind that where gains are expected the canvass is delayed, and a case may yet be presented in eight or ten counties where the case has been made up, the real fight is in this city and the Republican hopes were greatly dampened when Blaine's loss was announced yesterday that he found the majority to be 42,236, wiping out the gain of 426 votes announced on Saturday. The total number of votes upon which, in some form or another, George Bliss expects to take exception to the informal count already had is about four thousand. About one-third of these are defective or blank ballots and the rest are Butler, St. John and other votes which were miscounted, excluded or otherwise aided to swell the Cleveland vote.

Cattle Complaint.

WASHINGTON, November 12.—D. E. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, has submitted to the commissioner of agriculture a voluminous report upon contagious diseases of animals, the report being the result of experiments and investigation made by the veterinary division. Considerable space is given to the detailed history of the recent outbreak among cattle in Kansas and to a description of the symptoms. Dr. Salmon reaches the conclusion that the disease was ergotism, due to eating the fungus known as ergot. Upon the treatment and prevention of this disorder, he says: When the first signs of the disorder appear, the most important point to be attended to is to make a complete change of food and to see that it is of good quality, nutritious and free from ergot. It would also be proper to give a dose of physic, from one to two pounds of Epsom salts, to remove as much as possible the poison still contained in the digestive organs, and to follow this with soft food, as mash and roots. In most severe cases, those in which part of the limb is already lifeless, treatment will avail but little. The greater number of cases, however, have not advanced to this stage when the lameness is first noticed, and these may be greatly benefited by removing the cause and placing the animal under conditions favorable for resisting poison. A very important condition is warmth. Even when animals are fed large quantities of ergot they seldom suffer except in cold weather, and consequently, in attempting to check the advance of the disease, as stated above, should be taken of this fact by placing cattle in warm sheds. Another condition believed by some to have much influence on the development of ergotism, is the water supply. With plenty of water always at hand, it is believed large quantities of ergot may be taken for a longer time than when the water supply is deficient in the cold winters which occur over so much of our cattle raising country, it is difficult to induce animals to take a sufficient amount of water. Hides cut through the ice soon freeze over and the water is frequently so severe that cattle will drink only a few swallows of water before they will leave to seek shelter from cutting winds, and when later in the day they tried more water drinking the hides were frozen over. Where ergotism prevails, water should receive close attention. Ergotism can probably be entirely prevented by cutting the hay before the seeds have formed. Both in Missouri and Illinois I saw the clearest examples of this hay, composed of the same kind, cut up on the same land, was free from ergot or largely infested with it, according as it had been cut, green or ripe. This matter is worthy of careful consideration. Hay cut grass is more palatable than in every way more palatable than that which is allowed to become ripe and woody, and the latter is much more liable to produce severe disease, such as indigestion, impaction and ergotism. This fatal disorder may, therefore, be prevented in future, by proper and careful management.

Casualties.

QUEBEC, November 12.—Later dispatches in reference to the schooner Emilie, before reported wrecked at Point Des Moines, confirms the statement, but says the crew were all saved. They are now on Carleton Island without provisions.

MONTREAL, November 12.—Diphtheria is increasing to an alarming extent, and typhoid prevails. Doctors attribute both diseases to the defective city drainage.
